

LabDriver Backup

The backup is a process that shuts down the database and makes a copy of it. To ensure this process is successful several copies are made. If all the backups methods are installed and successful the nightly backup process will produce three different backups